Victory.

Flash the news, exultant wire,
Send it thrilling through the land,
Hear it like an altar fire,
Consecrating heart and hand,
Ring it over streets and lanes,
Fling it full on land and sea,—
Shout, on all our hills and plains,
Victory!

Fling the starry banner high!
Thunder cannon grave and grand;
Ring glad bells across the sky,
Pomp of triumph for our land,
Let the future hold its pain,
Be the present glad and free,
Walking back to life again
Victory!

Heardly thought? Nay, never fear,
Right is right, whatever it cost;
He who sees both blood and tear,
Will not count his losses lost!
What life when honor dies?
What is death, when souls are free,—
Which is writ in Heaven's eyes,
Victory!

If perchance some note of pain,
Sad as sorrow, sweet and low,
Falls like full of weeping rain,
For buried friends and buried foes,—
Thank your hopes lie cold and pale,
God's great heart may hear and see,
High above that broken wall,
Victory!

Then flash on, exultant wires,
Send it thrilling through the land,
Hear it like an altar fire,
Consecrating heart and hand!
God is near us in the strife,
And whatever the end may be,
He can make or death or life,
Victory!

VARIETY.

An even mind is never a prejudiced one.
Where God's rod strikes us, his staff supports us.
Pride costs as much as hunger, thirst, and cold.
Death has nothing terrible, but what life has made so.

He who does not bring up his son to an honest employment brings him up to a thief.
The very thing men fear is often brought to pass by the means they use to prevent it.

Think before acting. In prompt deeds are often as miserable as in prompt verses.
Nothing is farther than earth from heaven; nothing is nearer than heaven to earth.

Second thought is said to be better than first; but first childhood is better than second.
Perhaps the best definition of the brink of ruin is the brink of the goblet.

The most powerful men sometimes doubt their power.
The feeblest never.

We carry within us all the wonders that we seek without us.
True love is nourished by showers of adverse fortune as the roses and violets by showers of vernal rain.

A public speaker should never lose the thread of his discourse. Like a busy needle, he should always have the thread in his eye.

That which happens to the soil when it ceases to be cultivated by the social man, happens to himself when he foolishly forsakes society for solitude; the brambles grow up in his desert heart.

The following is a genuine copy of a bill made out by the owner of a country inn in Somersetshire:—
Apotheosis (hay for the horse) 3d.;
Apotheosis (cleaning horse and chaise) 4d.;
Apotheosis (bringing him home again) 6d.; total, 1s. 1d.

A man proves himself fit to go higher, who shows that he is faithful where he is. A man that will do well in his present place because he longs to be higher, is fit to be neither where he is, nor yet above it.

A Vermont farmer sent to an orphan asylum for a boy that was smart, active, brave, tractable, prompt, industrious, clean, pious, intelligent, good looking, reserved and modest. The superintendent replied that their boys were all human, though they were orphans, and referred him to the New Jerusalem, if he wanted to get his order filled.

Mr. Reynolds, the dramatist, once met a free and easy actor, who told him that he had passed three festive days, at the seat of the Marquis and Marchioness of —, without an invitation. He had gone there on the assumption that, as my lord and lady were not on speaking terms, each would suppose that the other had asked him and so it turned out.

"Wanted, expert needle-woman to make babies' bodies. Well, that beats all!" exclaimed Mrs. Partington, throwing down the newspaper. "Did any body ever hear the likes of that? I always said it was as good as telling 'Nurse' she didn't know how to do her own work when they instructed them in steam rams and donkey engines. But this impudent idea of makin' 'slop-work' babies is enough to make the poor thing throw down her tools and shut up shop. Mark my words, like them sewin' machines will be pressed into this new-fangled business afore long, and then all the emigrants in the world won't be able to keep down the humane population."

MAKING HOME HAPPY.—Among the most prominent evils of the age is the practice of allowing boys to spend their evenings away from the family circle. The first great duty of parents is to make home cheerful and pleasant. In order to guard children from the contaminating influences of evil society, parents and guardians should see that their children are supplied with some cheerful entertainment at home. They should give them an opportunity of improving their minds by gaining useful knowledge, and furnish them with books, the expense of which would be far less, than to provide them with funds for amusements away from home. If parents do their whole duty in interesting their children during the evenings, it will prevent them from associating with the idle and abandoned that throng the streets; and with proper treatment they will exhibit no disposition to wander from home. Many youths of good natural abilities have been ruined by substituting the street and places of public resort for the family fire-side. The habits of the boy will cling to the man. His standing and usefulness in life will depend upon the training received under the domestic roof. Thousands of boys who would otherwise have inscribed their names upon the roll of immortality, have been ruined by unhappy homes or the want of a cheerful domestic circle. Youth is fond of pleasure, and if deprived of it at home, naturally goes elsewhere to seek it.—
